INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY REPORT ON PATENTABILITY

International application No.
PCT/CA2004/001784

Box No. V Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. Statement

Novelty (N)	Claims	3-12	YES
	Claims	1,2	NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims	3,4,7-12	YES
	Claims	1,2,5,6	NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims	1-12	YES
	Claims	NONE	NO

2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: US 4,794,735

D1 is regarded as being the closest prior art in relation to the subject matter of claim 1 and discloses (references in parenthesis applying to D1):

"A structural automotive door body (12), comprising: an inner sheet metal layer (18), the inner sheet metal layer including a latch mounting surface (22) and at least one hinge mounting surface (20); an outer sheet metal layer (14); and a structural reinforcement member (32) disposed between the inner and outer sheet metal layers (fig. 1) to reinforce the inner and outer sheet metal layers and providing at least one hinge reinforcement (36) and a latch reinforcement (38)."

D1 further discloses in column 5, lines 42-45, that the inner panel is provided with hinge assemblies and parts of the door latch assembly to thereby cooperate with the hinge reinforcement (36) and latch reinforcement (38) areas of the reinforcement member, respectively.

Furthermore, because the inner/outer panels and reinforcement member work as a system, it is considered that the structural member functions to reinforce both the inner and outer sheet metal layers, thus enabling a lighter gauge panel construction that would not have been suitable without the reinforcement member.

Claims 1 and 2 are therefore not new under Article 33(2) PCT.

Claims 5 and 6 differ only from what is shown by D1 by very well known techniques of welding and hemming in the automotive fabrication art, that documentary evidence is unnecessary and therefore do not involve an inventive step(Article 33(3) PCT).

The subject matter of claims 3,4,7-9 differ from D1 in that portions of the reinforcement member abut and support both the inner and outer sheet metal layers and therefore are considered novel and inventive. Claims 10-12 differ from D1 in that the inner sheet metal defines a U-shaped structure with a carrier assembly covering the structure and further comprising a trim component for covering the carrier assembly, and, for these reasons are also considered novel and inventive in view of the prior art.

Claims 1-12 meet the criteria for Industrial Applicability set out in PCT Article 33(4) because the claimed invention can be made or deemed useful in industry.

INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY REPORT ON PATENTABILITYInternational application No.
PCT/CA2004/001784Box No. VIII    Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:

The scope of protection sought for claims 11 and 12 is unclear (Article 6 PCT) when dependent on claim 9 (Rule 6.4 (b) and Rule 6.4(c) PCT).

With regard to Rule 11.13(l) PCT, reference sign 71 appears in the description but not in the figures.

On page 9 of the description, line 8, it is believed to read: "... an inside release handle or lever 66 ..."

On page 12 of the description, line 10, it is believed to read: "... a fixation of slider 112 ..."
